THE "OLD ROMAN" IS HERE

AND HAS ALLEN G. THURMAN WELCOMED BY HIS ADMIRERS.

But at the Station, by an Honest Welsh Mob Up to Boniface What It Lacked in Numbers—Enlisted by Force and Loss of Hats. Mr. Thurman Goes South as Soon—Progress for Today—Incidents of the Trip to Chicago.

Delegates of the men in the three cities of people in and about the Grand Union depot from New York bearing the Hon. John C. Thurman and party rolled into the Northern station. Part of channel tackle and the band began to play. The train was not expected to stop here, and it was impossible for the crowd to determine from which of Mr. Thurman would alight. The party passed the special cars and a cowboy over one of the switches parked and the other the private car of the Superintendent of the road. From his door presently alighted a white-looking old gentleman whose heavy gray hair and rolling, rugged features were at once recognized. The beautiful face and figure excited instant admiration, and there was a rise of affection in the shouting that greeted the party as it passed through the gate. Mr. Thurman removed his hat often to alighted from the train and did not cease it. His action was unceasingly and as well as courteous, and the crowd gazed in admiration. They did both, apparently having a passage through which the party proceeded to the carriages in Fifth street. In the first carriage Mr. Thurman was accommodated by his son, John W., John A. Ela, and Collector Gallagher. Then other carriages contained members of the Board Committee and the party, as follows: Mr. Thurman, Jr., D. W. Edwards, of Columbus, Lieutenant A. Ward of Fort Wayne, Louis Adams, Thomas B. Courtney, W. C. Ball, Robert Nicholas, Justice E. Ball, William Bowles, A. B. Daly, Edward T. Hogan, Thomas Kehoe, Charles Kerr, William Fitzgerald, Andrew Welch, and Charles E. Wade.

The members of the Board Committee had a responsible berth with a representative of a business under the exemption.

When the carriages were from the Cook County Democracy marched to the number of about two from to station on Third avenue and to Van to Clark street. The carriages passed out the people crowded. Before the carriages rather reached Dearborn was packed by a formidable house stabilized gazer-ful, nearing the greeting in large part unseen.

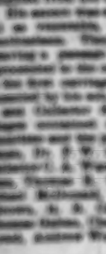
"Why do they call him an old Roman?" asked a young lady of her escort.

"Because he hasn't a cent to," said the gent with a frown. "Wonder a disappearing question-ask!

"Now! Then there for the next Presidency!"

They were given with an amount of energy that suggested the propriety of screening the names to the noted without further delay.

The carriages were followed to the sidewalks and the gazers fronted. Cheering Democrats and Democratic Club, The Young Cook, First Democratic Club brought up the rear, escorted by a hundred or two of pedestrians. The procession proceeded to the Palmer House in the following order:



Then came the band, and then the crowd. The sidewalks were packed with people, and from the windows of the hotel and the Palmer House fluttered handkerchiefs and waved hats. The crowd was not very demonstrative, but it was good-natured. Mr. Thurman bowed to the right and left, and occasionally stood up in the carriage and waved his hat. The procession moved slowly, and it took nearly half an hour to reach the Palmer House. Here Mr. Thurman was received by a committee of the Democratic Club, and was escorted to the parlors, where he was introduced to a number of gentlemen. He remained here about an hour, and then left for the depot, where he took the train for Cincinnati.

Mr. Thurman arrived in Chicago at 10:30 a. m. on the Lake Shore road. He was met at the depot by a committee of the Democratic Club, and was escorted to the parlors, where he was introduced to a number of gentlemen. He remained here about an hour, and then left for the depot, where he took the train for Cincinnati.

SHAMEFUL CAR SERVICE.

MILWAUKEE AVENUE RESIDENTS CRAVE ACCOMMODATIONS.

Mr. Yerkes' Two Fifty and Overcrowded Cars and the Utter Unreasonable Attitude of People Under Bidding—The Rich Patrons Effect on Property—Business South Directly of the Usual Hours and Will Give It Up Here Entirely—An Unwanted Road Wanted.

Superintendent Parsons, who manages the affairs of the largest section of Yerkes' West Side line, was seen yesterday by a Tribune reporter relative to the complaints of the Milwaukee avenue car service. The complaints of the latest accommodations along that thoroughfare, for the extended area and they were largely indicative of what many seem to call their chronic condition. The reporter asked Mr. Parsons if he had not been informed that the Milwaukee avenue people are dissatisfied with the present car service, and if he was not aware that the cars are overcrowded to an unreasonable extent during the greater portion of the forenoon and afternoon, the majority leaving the north of Fifth and Fifty-first streets. Second, that the cars are old, worn-out, unsafe, transferred from other streets, unclean a ride with long waits, and broken with the name of the streets, having broken machinery, and, whenever they can not run. Third, that there are only seven cars on the entire line, each of which is run every seven minutes, and that the service is inadequate to the demands of the public. Fourth, that the cars are run at irregular intervals, and that the service is not what it should be.

"I suppose," he said, "that you are not expecting a smooth ride, for you know that I have reserve my strength for emergencies. But you may rest assured that it shall not be my fault if you are not carried to Kingdom, you will have reason to be more thankful than I can possibly be. To say that I am grateful for this complaint would not express my feelings. I am here to see, however, that I am fighting in the right cause, and that, right or not, the cars in use, I believe."

"Three cheers for John C. Thurman!" cried some one from before the car and were duly rendered the same. They were given with a will.

"Three cheers for Grover Cleveland!" cried another, and they were given. Three more were given for John R. Fellows.

A representative of the Tribune, [illegible] the [illegible] of the Cook County Democracy, stepped forward. He said: "On behalf of the leading men of the United States, who, owing to railroad disturbances, have said you are not in Louisiana, as some have therefore at Indianapolis, I am requested to present you with this Rose Cushion."

Then every one cheered again, and Mr. Thurman arose and looked at the Rose cushion. This seemed to be one signal for every one to cheer another, and in a moment or two the centre of a throng, every one of whom was trying to get nearer to him.

He turned to Mr. Ela and expressed a desire to be taken to his room, as he was tired. The crowd instantaneously fell back and no left nothing one arose of Mr. King and Collector Gallagher. He was taken in one to the room, parlor 9. The adjoining room, parlor 8, is occupied by his son, and parlor 7 is also as a dining-room.

The crowd on the floor below by this time was getting unmanageable. It took the entire police and attendants, and for a few moments it looked serious for the members of the Democratic Club, who formed a cordon around Mr. Thurman to keep the crowd back. Then, it began to scatter, and then in shout. When the crowd from the third-room began to come down, it stopped long enough to call:

"Where's the Old Roman?"

"Come to the room for the night."

The attendant crowd below did not believe in that plan and it gave vent to its indignation in a cry that nearly stopped the pipes in the house. Now and then it subsided a little, and then broke out again, with renewed force. It rose and fell, but never stopped. The crowd coming down was unable to get out, for the crowd in the lobby would not move. Five minutes passed and there was no sentiment of the latter, apparently, and the crowd would try to give them to enter somewhere, for the crowd from the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

THE BANKS REMAIN SOLID

DEPOSITS OF NATIONALS' CONDITIONS GREATLY AMENDED.

Comptroller Eckels Says That Even Should Wealth, Both Individual Corporations Be Proved Insolvent, Depositors Have Other Sufficient Protection Than Payment of Claims on Cash Capital—Amount Paid Out and Yields.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—The following item has been going the rounds of the Democratic press:

A Boston dispatch says: "Among a lot of old bills which passed through the hands of Treasurer Jordan of the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust company was one for $1,000 issued by the Bank of Commerce of Cincinnati, O., which was presented for redemption. The bill was dated 1863, the earliest period of the Democratic regime in Democratic Ohio. It would be an interesting study to find out how many of the bills issued by the banks of Ohio during the Democratic regime are still outstanding. Probably a large number of them are, as the banks were not required to redeem them, and the people who received them in payment for goods or services had no way of getting them back to the banks of issue. Many of them were doubtless lost or destroyed, and the banks which issued them have gone out of existence."

The facts are these: A few weeks ago the public at large commenced paying off the U. S. Treasury Currency and National Bank notes, printed on which rendered a great deficiency in the Republican vaults. As most of the operations in the country must be carried on with money, and as the Republican party was about coming into power, the Democratic party, which was then in power, found itself in a very embarrassing position. Many of the most prominent men connected with the Democratic party, including Secretary Carlisle, Assistant Secretary Curtis, Treasurer Morgan, Register Bell, Comptroller Eckels, Mr. Cleveland's brother-in-law, Mr. Perrine, and many other Democrats, were in favor of issuing Treasury notes to the amount of $500,000,000 to meet the emergency. Others, however, were opposed to this, and the matter was finally left to the Secretary of the Treasury, who, after consulting with the President, decided to issue $50,000,000 of bonds, which were sold to the Rothschilds and others, and the money thus obtained was used to pay off the Treasury notes. The Democratic party, however, was not satisfied with this, and the Democratic press, which had been clamoring for the issue of $500,000,000 of Treasury notes, began to attack the Secretary of the Treasury, the President, and the Democratic party for not issuing the notes. The Democratic party, however, was not to be deterred from its purpose

Speech of Mr. Wm. Pinckney Hall Yesterday Before the Public Lyceum—Maintained That Senator Morgan Stands the Last Chance for Such Enactment if Congress Wishes to Place the Constitutionality Issue Unmistakably Before the Court—Other Interesting Political Problems.

Washington, D. C., Aug 31—Exceedingly large was the meeting of the Lyceum last night when the President on the subject of the repeal of the Sherman treaty from his lecture on "Some Questions Now Before Congress." The hall was filled to its utmost capacity, and many were turned away for lack of room.

The meeting was opened by Secretary Hall, who, after a few remarks, introduced Mr. Wm. Pinckney Hall, who spoke as follows:

The Record of the Administration Against the Latest Anti-Majority Argument Offered by the Republicans—The Duty of the Democrats in the Present Crisis—The Republican Position Exposed in Its Own Light—What Will Be Relied Upon for Success.

Washington, D. C., Aug 31—[Special.]—The President has been absolutely silent and reserved under the fierce attacks of partisan foes and the [illegible] of [illegible] friends. Probably no President ever had to endure so much criticism without his own party organs [illegible]. Mr. Cleveland has been content to stand by his record and to leave the country to judge between him and his enemies. The following letter, however, written to a friend in Chicago, will show more than [illegible] the President's views of the present political situation. It was written in response to a request that he would write a letter to be read at the Democratic meeting to be held in Chicago on the night of the 31st inst. The President has obviously concluded that the time has come when he can no longer remain silent without seeming to acquiesce in the position of the opposition. The letter is as follows:

THE CHANCE OF COMPETITION

SENATE SPECIALS GIVEN UP TODAY.

THE CHARGE AND IT IS FALSE.

The conference of Farmers' Alliance leaders in the Southern States (including all of Tennessee) may clearly contribute one further element for the good cause as a political exercise. Hitherto it has only figured in barbarous as the form of words and has appeared in a dull and trifling way in the rural journalism, but now we have it, alive and kicking, the symbol of a campaign, and spreading to the extent indicated.

Recent events has been largely drawn upon in the past to illustrate difficulties and private views in a sense of their duty. Eagles have declared and resolves have covered through many a campaign. The work and the money have been service for the Democracy and the element has been a favorite touchstone used in Democratic editorials. Cases were pinched in the Southern days of '76 and are matching their engagements in the Northern days of '91. The story has proved many a time just an exaggeration of partisans and the one element to identify upon a Federal campaign. But with the exception of the Senate fight in Arkansas, papers are, between the Senate Tariff and Short-Sweep—and even in the two are only opposed incidentally—the Wisconsin campaign is the first in which the new cause is the front as a clear-cut issue and an element of victory. And it is the test of all the wires—the Jersey.

Farmer Board is ready to the handsome greetings of its vice people at Fort Atkinson showered its love for the Jersey by adoption for on the issue and for in the open chase of the struggle. Its new will contest its rights to it. By speech and vote can be has generously and eloquently espoused the Jersey cause with all that is involved. He was pitted with pros to $200,000,000 investor in the dairy business of the State and to the case of $50,000,000 derived from cows annually due to its interest. It is an argument which will come more with tremendous force to every Wisconsin farmer, his wife and children, and mean the deepest enthusiasm in the highest pitch. Every man in Wisconsin who owns a cow, farmer or otherwise, and every woman who makes butter favors Farmer Board and its one test of oleo in Republicans and persons, brandy and rice, etc. He has been their authority for years in electioning gathering in the dairy, and he will be their authority now in politics. He sent the Jersey cure, his humble agent, will gather in the farmers and laborers to a meeting calculated to astonish Chauncey M. Depew, as well as the Democrats of that State. If there been no other reason for its having the Continental clash, the simple, stable, heavy, unaffected manner in which he replied to the emphasis should an end of the fair. A speech of late from, with no lingering appeal for noise, with none of the conventional political humbug about it, consisting "I breed beefs and cultivated hens," confessing the weakness were the "lawful arms of responsibility" and claiming for himself only "a short heart and a conscience, to the best I can," is such a novel to noisy campaigns that it is refreshing. It paves to him as the man who is in every way fitted to succeed such old Jerry Rusk, who will be busy in every campaign, and who will break to no one interdictions about science, sense and enlightenment business principles. There need be no fears as to the results of the canvass. He is not hampered by any twelve with affidavits, and does he care these any thing. He was nominated by the Grangers, and they will see to it that he is elected by a swinging majority.

Farmer Board and the Jersey cow are all right.

THE GOVERNORSHIP OF A GOOD MAN.

The Irregulars of Iowa and the other West-ern States are indulgent men. They work hard, but they get time enough to read the papers. They do not, however, often see the stock jobbing journals of Wall street, and are unfamiliar with the half corrupt, half-patronizing way in which those organs of railroad monopoly and corporation talk of the Western farmers. Except on those occasions when Tom Dockery has re-ordained and decorated the working ministers of those regions of gubernatorial and congressional dignity, the farmers of the West are not aware of their existence. The Democrats recently defeated Gov. Larrabee of Iowa against the usual abuse poured on him by the New York Sun, because of his attempts to enforce the State law for the suppression of the saloon. It is true that the Democratic party elected Gov. Larrabee, but it was in spite of the Democratic party that he was renominated and elected. The working farmers of Iowa, and the laborers in the towns, are not aware of the fact that Gov. Larrabee has been denounced by the Democratic party because he has enforced the law. They do not know that the Democratic party elected Gov. Larrabee in spite of the Democratic party, and they do not know that the Democratic party elected him because it was afraid of losing the votes of farmers and laborers who are opposed to the saloon.

The Democrats in Idaho have made a trade with the Democrats in which one votes are to support their ticket. There is nothing new in this. The Democratic party in Missouri often does this thing, and in fact the working of their machine depends upon it. The Democratic party in Texas, in order to secure the votes of the Democratic party in Missouri, has been compelled to make a trade with the Democrats in that State. The Democratic party in Texas has to make a trade with the Democrats in Missouri, in order to secure the votes of the Democratic party in Missouri. The Democratic party in Missouri has to make a trade with the Democrats in Texas, in order to secure the votes of the Democratic party in Texas

SECOND DAY OF THE WASHINGTON PARK RACES.

The Fourth Day of the Hundred Meeting Northern Circuit Racing Association—Two Favorites Fight Hands to a Finish for Second—Lucille S. Takes the Cup from Her—Results to the Fastest Struggles—At the West Side Track.

Lovers of trotting and pacing to the number of 5,000 were at Washington Park yesterday afternoon and enjoyed a series of excellent contests. It was the fourth day of the Hundred-mile Meeting. The judges were Col. [illegible], Chicago; [illegible], Indianapolis, and Charles E. Smith of Boston.

The sport began with the unfinished 2:40 race, the postponement from Thursday on account of darkness after fourteen and three-fourths miles had been made. Pilgrim won the heating race in 2:39, with Alexander Boy a length behind. Pilgrim was the favorite in the pools, but Alexander Boy was the favorite in the betting. The latter had a good showing during the 10 to 1 shots.

The first regular event of the day, the 2:40 class, was won in three heats by Lucille S. Then Jay Bird took the first heat in 2:29, Lucille S. and other good-looking colts were second on the other trips, with Wilson going against the field the first time. C. H. Hunt of Cedar Rapids, Ia., petitioned to have Mr. Bonnell withdrawn on the ground that the driver had failed to keep his horse to the pace, and that a protest to enter had been signed against Wilson by Fogerty, Ten Eyck, Hunt and Bonnell. Mr. Bonnell explained that the horse went lame, and that the driver, in order to save the heat money, had kept him in the race. The judges considered the matter and found that the horse went lame, and that the driver, in order to save the heat money, had kept him in the race.
